Petr. Sir heres the doore, this is Lucentios house,
My Fathers beares more toward the Market-place,
Thither must I and heere I leaue you sir.

Vin. You shall not choose but drinke before you go,
I thinke I shall command your welcome here;
And by all likelihood some cheere is toward. Knock.

Grem. They're busie within, you were best knocke lowder.

Pedant lookes out of the window.

Ped. What's he that knockes as he would beate downe the gate?

Vin. Is Signior Lucentio within sir?

Ped. He's within sir, but not to be spoken withall.

Vinc. What if a man bring him a hundred pound or two to make merrie withall.

Ped. Keepe your hundred pounds to your selfe, he shall neede none so long as I liue.

Petr. Nay, I told you your sonne was beloued in Padua: doe you heare sir, to leaue friuolous circumstances, I pray you tell Signior Lucentio that his Father is come from Pisa, and is heere at the doore to speake with him.

Ped. Thou liest his Father is come from Padua, and here looking out of the window.

Vin. Art thou his Father?

Ped. I sir, so his mother sayes if I may beleeue her.

Petr. Why how now Gentleman: why this is flat knauerie to take vpon you an other mans name.

Ped. Lay hands on the villaine, I beleeue a meanes to cozen some bodie in this Citie vnder my countenance.

Enter Biondello.

Bion. I haue seene them in the Church together, God send them good shipping: but who is heere? mine old Master Vincentio: now we are vndone and brought to nothing.

Vin. Come hither crackhempe.

Bion. I hope I may choose Sir.

Vin. Come hither you rogue, what haue you forgot mee?

Biond. Forgot you, no sir: I could not forget you, for I neuer saw you before in all my life.

Vinc. What, you notorius villaine, didst thou neuer see thy Mistris father, Vincentio;

Bion.

Bion. What my worshipfull
where he lookes out of the windo

Vin. Ifts so indeede. He bea

Bion. Helpe, helpe, helpe, h

Pedan. Help, sonne, helpe S

Pet. Prethee, Kate let's stan controuersie.

Enter Pedant with seruants,

Tra. Sir what are you that of Vinc. What am I sir: nay wha

oh fine villaine, a silken doub
and a capataine hat: oh I am vn
the good husband at home, my at the vniuersitie.

Tra. How now what's the ma

Bapt. What is the man lunatic

Tra. Sir, you seeme a sober an but your words shew you amad m
if I weare Pearle and gold: I tha to maintaine it.

Vin. Thy father: oh villaine, h

Bap. You Mistake sir, you mist is his name?

Vin. His name, as if I knew him vp euer since he was three yee

Ped. Awaie, away mad asse, h mine onelie sonne and heire to the

Vin. Lucentio, oh he hath m
him I charge you in the Dukes na tell me thou villaine, where is my

Tra. Call forth an officer: Carr
Father Baptista, I charge you see

Vinc. Carrie mee to the Iaile?

Gre. Staie officer, he shall not g

Bap. Talke not signior Gremio

Gre. Take heede signior Bapt
this businesse: I dare sweare this is

Ped. Sweare if thou dar'st,

WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE Taming of the Shrew (STC 22327) LONDON, 1631 THE BODLEIAN LIBRARY (Arch